Interests

Research always piqued my interest. I have a particular interest in the research area of development, teaching and learning – the interplay between emotions, procrastination and other potential factors that affect learning. Also, the physiological and neurocognitive underpinnings of such research, as well as a vested interest in statistics & quantitative methods, in particular longitudinal measurements. Qualitative approaches such as Design-Based Research are getting my attention lately – exploring how to implement laboratory findings in real life and follow up on the effects.

Other skills

- Good communication skills gained through my work in marketing and also by presenting in different international conferences.
- Leadership skills, currently leading Evidence Based Future (PSMRC) with a focus in - conducting and implementing national research.

- Good managing skills, managing research projects.
- Good coordinator, co-organizing international symposiums and conferences.
